Colonization/Imperialism 1492-1750

WHAT...Colonization

to establish a colony in; settle: Europeans colonized the New World.

- By the early to mid-seventeenth century, Spain, England, France, and the Netherlands were all competing for colonies and trade around the world.
- Beginning in the late fifteenth century, explorers, conquerors, missionaries, merchants, and adventurers sought to claim new lands to colonize.
- Competition for land grabs, settlement, trade, and exploration led to the growth of New World imperialism and the economic system of mercantilism.

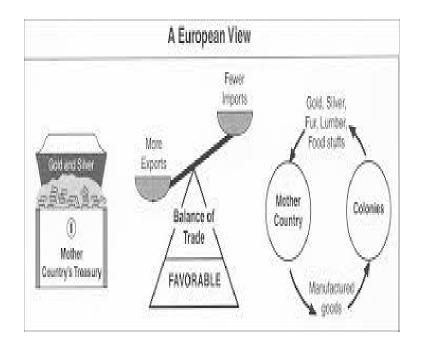

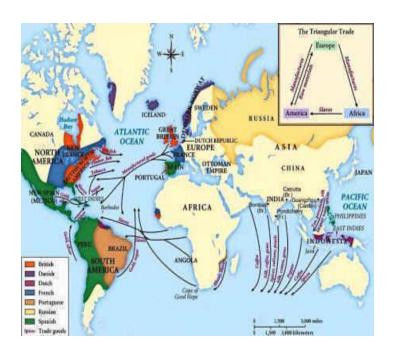

What is Mercantilism?

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Bouw3MvmrYM

- Mercantilism (the accumulation of wealth by acquiring gold and silver) and the increasing wealth acquired from colonial possessions encouraged the growth of capitalism.
- Mercantilism began the concept of "Globalization"

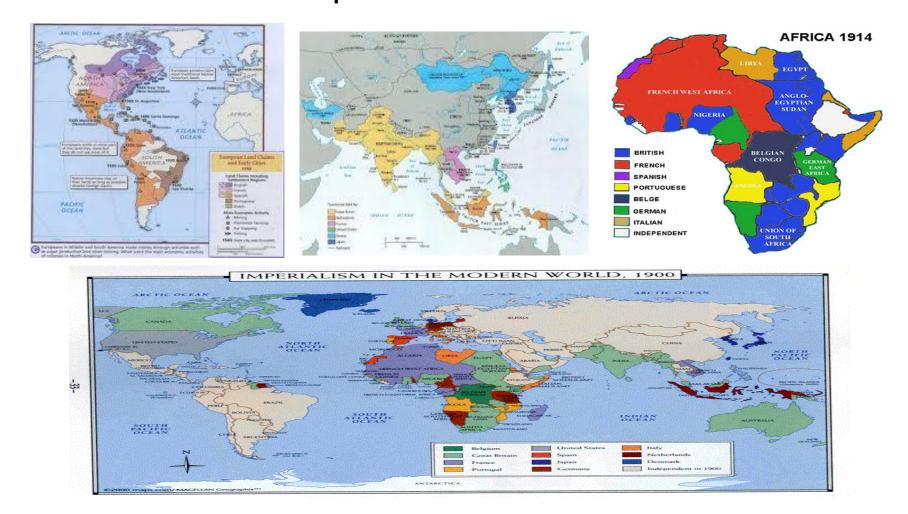

What ...Imperialism

The policy of extending the rule or authority of an empire or nation, often by force, over foreign countries, or of acquiring and holding colonies.

Colonialism is a form of imperialism.

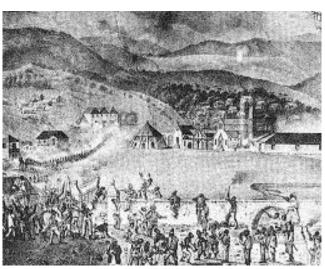

Who ... Spanish Colonization

Conquistadors, missionaries, settlers

- A flood of Spanish settlers and missionaries followed the conquistadors to Spain's new empire.
- Wherever they went they established colonies, claiming the land and its people for their king and Church.
- When there was resistance, the newcomers imposed their will by force.
- Over time, however, a new culture emerged that reflected European, Native American, and African traditions.

Who: English, French, and various others...

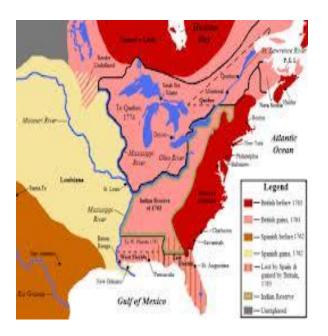

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=sWtzWw4LYmg

In the 1600s, France, the Netherlands, England, and Sweden joined Spain in settling North America.

Before long, though, the English and French were turning large profits.

By 1700, France and England controlled large parts of North America. Their colonies differed from each other and from those of Spanish America in terms of language, government, resources, and society.

Portugal colonized Brazil.

When: 1492-1750

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ihD3 Nm8qA

- The start of the European colonization of the Americas is typically dated to 1492
- In 1492, a Spanish expedition headed by Christopher Columbus sailed for India to sell, buy, and trade rich spices and other goods, inadvertently discovering what is today North America.
- European conquest, large-scale exploration and colonization soon followed.

 After 1500 colonization extended into the interiors of both North and South America.
- In 1497, sailing from the north on behalf of England, John Cabot landed on the North American coast.
- France founded colonies in much of eastern North America, on a number of Caribbean islands, and in South America.
- In the 19th century alone over 50 million people left Europe for the Americas.

Where:

The New World, North and South America, and The Western Hemisphere

European contact began in the Caribbean islands when Columbus landed there in 1492.

After 1500 colonization extended into the interiors of both North and South America.

Eventually, the entire Western Hemisphere came under the control of European governments.

How were the Europeans able to conquer the much larger population of Native Americans?

- Although Spanish conquistadors and other European Imperialists only numbered in the hundreds as compared to millions of Native Americans, they had many advantages.
- Their guns and cannons were superior to the Native Americans' arrows and spears, and European metal armor provided them with better protection.
- They also had horses, which not only were useful in battle and in carrying supplies, but also frightened the Native Americans, who had never seen a horse.

How were the Europeans able to conquer the much larger population of Native Americans?

- Most importantly, an invisible invader—disease—helped the conquistadors take control of the Taínos and other Native Americans.
- Europeans unknowingly carried diseases such as smallpox, measles, and influenza to which Native Americans had no immunity, or resistance.
- As a result, the Native American population of the Caribbean islands declined by as much as 90 percent in the 1500s.
- Millions of Native Americans died from disease as Europeans made their way inland.

Wisdom: outcome /results The Columbian Biological Exchange

The Columbian Exchange, also known as the Grand Exchange, was a dramatically widespread exchange of animals, plants, culture, human populations (including slaves), communicable disease, and ideas between the American and Afro-Eurasian Hemispheres following the voyage to the Americas by Christopher Columbus in 1492.

In the biological and ecological exchange that took place following Spanish establishment of colonies in New World, people of Europe and Africa settled in the New World, and animals, plants and diseases of Eurasia and the Western Hemisphere were introduced to each area in an interchange.

This exchange of plants and animals transformed European, American, African, and Asian ways of life.

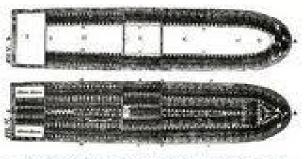

Wisdom: outcome/results The Slave trade

Enslaved Africans formed part of an international trade network that arose during the 1500s. The Spanish were the first major European partners in the slave trade, buying slaves to labor in Spain's South American empire. As other European powers established colonies in the Americas, the slave trade—and with it the entire international trade network—intensified.

"...I WAS SOON PUT DOWN UNDER THE DECKS, AND THERE I RECEIVED SUCH / SALUTATION IN MY NOSTRILS AS I HAD NEVER EXPERIENCED IN MY LIFE; SO THAT WITH THE LOATHSOME STENCH AND CRYING TOGETHER, I BECAME SO SICK AND LOW THAT I WAS NOT ABLE TO EAT..."

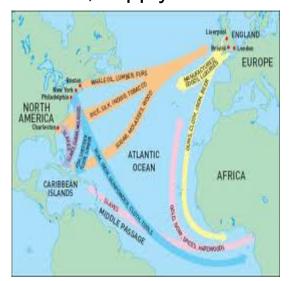

Otsudah Egutana

Wisdom: outcome/results The Growth of Market Economic Systems

Mercantilism (the accumulation of wealth by acquiring gold and silver) and the increasing wealth acquired from colonial possessions encouraged the growth of capitalism (an economic system characterized by profit motive, private ownership, free markets, supply and demand and competition). Origins of "Globalization"

Current Event Ideas?